Circle...

representing the Oneness of life, and the container within which we as humans live out the context of our lives. It represents the Wholeness of a humans, before we were seemingly fragmented by ego and after we have become aware that we have never lost that Wholeness.

Triangle...

representing what is known as the Law of Three, which states that every whole phenomenon is composed of three separate sources: the Active, the Passive and the Neutral. In his Fourth Way teachings, G.I. Gurdjieff applied the Law of Three in a process of transformation which required, as he saw it: affirmation, denial, and reconciliation.

Hexad...

a six pointed figure that follows seven points from beginning, through six changes in momentum, and then back to its origin, which is the seventh point. The Hexad represents the Law of Seven, which considers the path of movement toward and away from anything in our world as not a straight line, but rather periods along the journey of striving, failing, and striving again...a rising and falling of energies along the path.

The best way is to understand yourself,
and then you will
understand everything.
